

SPE 231 : Voice and Diction

This course focuses on the study of the process of oral speech—development of speech; physics of sound; and the physiological, psychological, and social bases of speech and phonetics. Some attention will be paid to voice quality. Especially designed for teachers and those entering the professions.

Credits 3