

Student Publications

Students who want to develop their talents in journalism may elect to participate in the development and publication of The Stillman Advance, an online newspaper. Students are also provided opportunities to learn job-related skills and acquire experience by working on interdepartmental journals and publications.